A Great Blue Heron has landed on the 2007 MWA Commemorative Ornament

By Rosemary Kent

Come springtime, if one is sharp-eyed and patient, the Great Blue Heron (ardea herodias) can be seen on certain sections of the Musconetcong River. This statuesque, dignified bird will be perching on the river's grassy banks or wading in its fast moving water searching for food and perhaps looking for a mate.

Artist/photographer Merle Morse, a long-time member of the Musconetcong Watershed Association, has been lucky over the years to observe the colorful and graceful bird in a riverside area near her home in the historic village of Beattystown. Morse's heron sightings have been for her both a birdwatcher's delight and a fitting subject for her artwork.

As a result of her up-close and personal observations, Morse's luminous watercolor portrait of this migratory heron with the S-shaped neck and long legs, entitled "Beattystown Great Blue Heron," will be the featured image for the 2007 Musconetcong Watershed Association Commemorative Ornament.

"A neighbor of mine has property with frontage on the Musconetcong where I often walk, and in spring I have been so fortunate to see the Great Blue Heron, one of my favorite birds, many times. They look as if they were made by a committee!" says Morse.

"If I do see one I have to stand very still as they are alert and wary. They are fast, excellent fishermen and it is fascinating to watch them strike their prey with their oversized beaks. The very fact they are fishing in the Musconetcong tells us that the river's aquatic life here is healthy or the herons would go somewhere else to survive."

Warren County Community College and Musconetcong Watershed Association: A Work In Progress

By Ralston Bartholomew, Assistant Professor of Biological Sciences

A 'thank you' from Warren County Community College (WCCC) to the Musconetcong Watershed Association is an appropriate way to introduce this article. The first "thank you" goes to the MWA for the time and effort put into protecting the river and the second, more specifically, to Beth Styler Barry, who has been providing field trips for the Environmental Studies classes for several semesters now. The course centers on the ideas of stewardship and sustainability. It is difficult to imagine an organization or person more dedicated to these ideals. An old environmental saying is "Think Globally, Act Locally." The MWA and Styler Barry epitomize this.

Beth conducts field trips that visit the Point Mountain area, Asbury, Finesville and Hackettstown. She speaks on the Wild & Scenic designation, positive aspects and problems with the Highlands Act, development, runoff, point and non-point source pollution, biodiversity, riparian buffers and dam removal. She always engages students and enlightens them to the Musconetcong Advisory Council, Morse was involved early on in helping to get the Musconetcong River into the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System. Over the years, she visited various sections of the river to evaluate its conditions for eligibility for the Wild and Scenic inclusion and was "extremely ecstatic" when the river did receive this prestigious designation.

Drawing and painting since she was a small child, Morse began her formal art training at the New York Phoenix School, which later became Pratt Institute, and graduated from the Newark School of Fine and Industrial Arts. Her oils, watercolors and photography have been bought by private clients, and she has exhibited at Atrium Gallery in Morristown, Hillcrest Camera Club in Phillipsburg, Arts Off Main Gallery in Hackettstown, and in both solo and group shows presented by the Warren County Arts, of which she is a charter member.

Eighth in a series, the MWA Commemorative Ornament, introduced in 2000, is a custom-made, white porcelain disc with original artwork on one side of it highlighting a scenic or historic site of Musconetcong River, as interpreted by an artist living on or near the river. The featured artist's signature and the title of the image appear on the reverse. Both to keep and to given, these high-quality ornaments have become instant collectibles.

All sales of the ornament, which can be hung, framed or displayed, benefit MWA. The 2007 ornament, "Beattystown Great Blue Heron" by Merle Morse, sells for $22 which includes shipping and handling.

Ornaments are available by mail (make checks payable to MWA) and online by credit card. To order online please visit www.musconetcong.org or by using the (enclosed) order form in this newsletter. A limited number of ornaments from the past years also can be ordered. To place a phone order call (908) 537-7060 or email Adrienne@musconetcong.org with any questions.

issues of the river and what it has to offer the community.

WCCC, in return, has adopted the Penwell area of the river for the Annual Stream Clean-Up. This year 20 of my students and other volunteers collected 30 bags of trash! For the last two clean-ups, I've been amazed to see the students team together with so great a sense of purpose. In addition, I recently became involved with the "River Watcher" water quality monitoring program. Over the summer, I was trained as a River Watcher and assisted in the training of other volunteers participating in the program. I will continue to lead quarterly testing at the monitoring site in Finesville.

On the Pohatcong Creek, just one watershed north, WCCC students have assisted with a riparian revegetation project on the Roaring Rock Brook in Meadowbreeze Park. They have also recently painted the storm sewers at the college with a fish captioned "Empties into Pohatcong Creek" as a means of increasing environmental awareness on campus.

Future ideas for a strengthened relationship between the MWA and WCCC include science students taking on ecological, biological and chemical research projects in the watershed. Ecotourism students intend to support the MWA in developing informational materials and offerings organized recreational opportunities to MWA members and the community. I hope the next article I contribute is an update on the progression of these activities.

Venture Scout Crew 63 Helps Out At The River Resource Center

On a recent afternoon, Venture Scout Crew 63 from Warren County spent several hours cutting dead wood, clearing debris and making sure that logs marking trail boundaries were in place at the River Resource Center in Asbury. The scouts of Crew 63 have helped Musconetcong Watershed Association in the past with trail maintenance and maintenance of its riparian buffer planting at the River Resource Center.

Venture scouting is a youth development program of the Boy Scouts of America for young men and women who are 14 through 20 years of age. Venturing is based on a dynamic relationship between youth, adult leaders, and organizations in their communities. The result is a program of exciting and meaningful activities that helps youth pursue their special interests, grow, develop leadership skills, and become good citizens. For more information on joining Venture Scout Crew 63 please contact Venture Scout leaders Maria Henley at j.henley2@comcast.net or Dennis Boyle at d.a.boyle@att.net Say Cheese....or maybe not. Venture Scout Crew 63 takes time out from a very productive workday to pose for a group shot.

Kids with chain saws and sharp tools? Count us in. Adult supervision for the trail clearing was provided by MWA member Bob Hood, MWA Trustee Kim Hood, Scout Leader Dennis Boyle, Dawn Turek and Scout Leader Maria Henley.

Many Hands Make Light Work The Venture Scouts removed deadwood, cut back vegetation and cleared debris from the 1.3-mile trail at the River Resource Center.

Will Work for Marshmallows Venture Scout Danielle Pacifico enjoyed the post trail cutting bonfire.

The Musconetcong Watershed Association

The Musconetcong River Valley is rich in scenery, history, natural resources, and recreational opportunities. The river rises up in Lake Hopatcong - New Jersey's largest spring-fed lake - and shadowed by 1,000 foot Highland ridges, it slices through a deep limestone river valley, flowing swiftly to the Delaware River. Along the way the "Musky" passes by state and county parks, bustling towns and vital industries, historic villages, and some of the most productive farmland in the state.

The Musconetcong Watershed Association (MWA) is a non-profit organization formed in 1991 to protect and enhance the Musconetcong River and its related resources through advocacy and environmental education programs, scientific research and river restoration projects. The MWA scope spans the 158 square mile Musconetcong River Watershed, and includes portions of four counties, and all or portions of 25 municipalities.

MWA members are part of a network of individuals, families and organizations who care about the Musconetcong River and its watershed. They are kept informed about issues concerning the river and its related resources by receiving quarterly issues of the Musconetcong River News.
